Q3 Internet Service Providers (ISPs), such as BT or Virgin Media, are able to block pornographic content on devices that use the internet on your personal web-enabled devices (including laptops, desktop computers, mobile phones, iPads, etc.), but they have expressed strong reservations about doing so. Should the Government act to force ISPs to block such content, or not?

CPANEL MARCH 2012

Q3 Internet Service Providers (ISPs), such as BT or Virgin Media, are able to block pornographic content on devices that use the internet on your personal web-enabled devices (including laptops, desktop computers, mobile phones, iPads, etc.), but they have expressed strong reservations about doing so. Should the Government act to force ISPs to block such content, or not?
