	It would be wrong for the House of Lords to try and thwart Brexit	It is wrong that the House of Lords has already voted against the government on Brexit 14 times	The House of Lords should have its membership capped and members who do not contribute meaningfully should be excluded	The House of Lords generally works well as a legislature and so should be left unreformed	Too many members of the House of Lords are only there because of their party loyalty	There are currently 780 members of the Lords compared to 650 MPs in the Commons. This is too many	The £305 a day allowance claimed by peers simply for turning up is too much	The Liberal Democrats have 98 peers compared to just 12 MPs. This is too many and unfair
