Q.1 In February, the UK carried out a deportation of British residents to Jamaica, including those who had been resident in the UK a long time. The law currently makes it mandatory for the Home Office to seek the deportation of any non-British citizen who receives a custodial sentence in the UK of 12 months or more, with no discretion to take other factors, such as residency or parenthood, into account. When, if ever, do you think the Home Office should seek the removal of the following groups of British residents that have received a custodial sentence in the UK of 12 months or more?

Q.1 In February, the UK carried out a deportation of British residents to Jamaica, including those who had been resident in the UK a long time. The law currently makes it mandatory for the Home Office to seek the deportation of any non-British citizen who receives a custodial sentence in the UK of 12 months or more, with no discretion to take other factors, such as residency or parenthood, into account. When, if ever, do you think the Home Office should seek the removal of the following groups of British residents that have received a custodial sentence in the UK of 12 months or more?

Those who came to the UK as adults and have a genuine and subsisting parental relationship with a British child

Q.1 In February, the UK carried out a deportation of British residents to Jamaica, including those who had been resident in the UK a long time. The law currently makes it mandatory for the Home Office to seek the deportation of any non-British citizen who receives a custodial sentence in the UK of 12 months or more, with no discretion to take other factors, such as residency or parenthood, into account. When, if ever, do you think the Home Office should seek the removal of the following groups of British residents that have received a custodial sentence in the UK of 12 months or more?
