Business Leaders Survey ~ Fieldwork dates: 21st - 23rd Jan 2019

Q4. Public health standards are regulations and laws setting the minimum standards required to promote and protect the public's health and wellbeing. They prevent and control existing and emerging threats such as resistance to antibiotics, chemical threats (e.g. chemical spills and bio-terrorism) and health emergencies (e.g. Ebola and pandemic flu). They address cardiovascular disease, cancers and diabetes, and their risk factors (e.g. tobacco use, harmful alcohol use and unhealthy diet) and environmental risks such as air pollution. They also provide standards for health products and services (e.g. medicines) and patients (e.g. safety and health services). To what extent, if at all, do you agree or disagree with the following statements about current public health rules, regulations and protections? Summary Table

Business Leaders Survey ~ Fieldwork dates: 21st - 23rd Jan 2019

Q4_1. They help to support the health and wellbeing of the people I work with and manage: Public health standards are regulations and laws setting the minimum standards required to promote and protect the public's health and wellbeing. They prevent and control existing and emerging threats such as resistance to antibiotics, chemical threats (e.g. chemical spills and bio-terrorism) and health emergencies (e.g. Ebola and pandemic flu). They address cardiovascular disease, cancers and diabetes, and their risk factors (e.g. tobacco use, harmful alcohol use and unhealthy diet) and environmental risks such as air pollution. They also provide standards for health products and services (e.g. medicines) and patients (e.g. safety and health services). To what extent, if at all, do you agree or disagree with the following statements about current public health rules, regulations and protections?

Q4_2. They help to support the health and wellbeing of the UK workforce: Public health standards are regulations and laws setting the minimum standards required to promote and protect the public's health and wellbeing. They prevent and control existing and emerging threats such as resistance to antibiotics, chemical threats (e.g. chemical spills and bio-terrorism) and health emergencies (e.g. Ebola and pandemic flu). They address cardiovascular disease, cancers and diabetes, and their risk factors (e.g. tobacco use, harmful alcohol use and unhealthy diet) and environmental risks such as air pollution. They also provide standards for health products and services (e.g. medicines) and patients (e.g. safety and health services). To what extent, if at all, do you agree or disagree with the following statements about current public health rules, regulations and protections?

Q4_3. They help to support sustainable economic development: Public health standards are regulations and laws setting the minimum standards required to promote and protect the public's health and wellbeing. They prevent and control existing and emerging threats such as resistance to antibiotics, chemical threats (e.g. chemical spills and bio-terrorism) and health emergencies (e.g. Ebola and pandemic flu). They address cardiovascular disease, cancers and diabetes, and their risk factors (e.g. tobacco use, harmful alcohol use and unhealthy diet) and environmental risks such as air pollution. They also provide standards for health products and services (e.g. medicines) and patients (e.g. safety and health services). To what extent, if at all, do you agree or disagree with the following statements about current public health rules, regulations and protections?

Q4_4. They hinder the UK's economic development: Public health standards are regulations and laws setting the minimum standards required to promote and protect the public's health and wellbeing. They prevent and control existing and emerging threats such as resistance to antibiotics, chemical threats (e.g. chemical spills and bio-terrorism) and health emergencies (e.g. Ebola and pandemic flu). They address cardiovascular disease, cancers and diabetes, and their risk factors (e.g. tobacco use, harmful alcohol use and unhealthy diet) and environmental risks such as air pollution. They also provide standards for health products and services (e.g. medicines) and patients (e.g. safety and health services). To what extent, if at all, do you agree or disagree with the following statements about current public health rules, regulations and protections?

Q4_5. They do not go far enough in supporting the health and wellbeing of the UK workforce: Public health standards are regulations and laws setting the minimum standards required to promote and protect the public's health and wellbeing. They prevent and control existing and emerging threats such as resistance to antibiotics, chemical threats (e.g. chemical spills and bio-terrorism) and health emergencies (e.g. Ebola and pandemic flu). They address cardiovascular disease, cancers and diabetes, and their risk factors (e.g. tobacco use, harmful alcohol use and unhealthy diet) and environmental risks such as air pollution. They also provide standards for health products and services (e.g. medicines) and patients (e.g. safety and health services). To what extent, if at all, do you agree or disagree with the following statements about current public health rules, regulations and protections?

Q7. To what extent, if at all, do you agree or disagree with the following statements? Summary Table

BASE: All respondents

Significance Level: 95%

Unweighted Total

The UK government should consider the possible impact on the health and wellbeing of the UK workforce before agreeing a trade deal with another country after Brexit

The UK government should consider the possible impact on the health and wellbeing of the UK population before agreeing a trade deal with another country after Brexit

Leaders in the health community should have a 'seat at the table' - alongside the business community - in the negotiations of future trade deals with other countries after Brexit

There are more important aspects of negotiation to focus on than health and wellbeing

I would not mind if the UK government had to reduce the number of public health rules, regulations and protections, to help secure a trade deal with another country
