	Parliament should be able to veto the Government's proposed Brexit deal once it has been negotiated	Theresa May comes across as a modern day Margaret Thatcher	Jeremy Corbyn is being treated unfairly by the media	Theresa May's Government has the best interests at heart of people like me	Overall, the Government's Budget measures announced last week were fair	I do not expect Britain to conclude the process of leaving the EU within two years, as currently planned	I view it as important that the Government balances its books, even if that means cutting some public services to save money	Theresa May should insist that any second Scottish referendum on independence takes place only once Britain has concluded the process of leaving the EU
